

Negotiating Climate Change in the UN

Same Procedure as Every Year? Not Quite!

Publication

Article

Citation

Bausch, C. , & Mehling, M. Anniversary Special: The Inaugural Issue a Decade Later â
Negotiating Climate Change in the UN: Carbon & Climate Law Review Volume 11, Issue 3 (2017)
pp. 179 - 183

In their 2007 publication for the first issue of CCLR, Dr. Camilla Bausch, Director of Ecologic Institute, and Michael Mehling, Partner and Board Member of the Institute, took stock of progress with climate negotiations under the United Nations. Now, a decade later, they have revisited their assessment, tracing the tumultuous path of negotiations since 2007, and pointing to milestones in the journey, major achievements, as well as challenges that lie ahead.

To commemorate the 10th anniversary, CCLR invited the authors of the inaugural issue to revisit their articles of a decade ago, and to reflect on them from the present perspective.

Language

English

Authorship

Dr. Camilla Bausch
Prof. Dr. Michael Mehling, LL.M.

Published in

Carbon & Climate Law Review (CCLR), Volume 11, Issue 3

Published by

Lexxion, Germany

Year

2017

Dimension

5 pp.

ISSN

1864-9904

DOI

doi.org/10.21552/cclr/2017/3/4

Keywords

Climate

Environmental Law & Ecologic Legal

Source URL: <https://www.ecologic.eu/15110>