Johannes Seilnacht works as an Event Manager for Ecologic Institute. Here he works on the preparation, implementation and follow-up of national, European and international events on environmental issues. One focal point of his work is the technical preparation and implementation of virtual and hybrid events at Ecologic Institute. In addition to the conventional conference management tasks, Johannes' work also includes the technical implementation of online events with various video conference and streaming software (technical direction). He works in German and English.

Johannes Seilnacht studied political science and sociology at the University of Jena (Germany) and completed an apprenticeship as an event manager at Ecologic Institute. He gained his first experience in conference management in 2016 as part of an internship at the European Academy in Berlin.
