

Climate: Saved by the pandemic?

Dr. Camilla Bausch's publication in ISPI Dossier "The World in 2021"

Publication

Article

Citation

Bausch, Camilla 2020: Climate: Saved by the pandemic? In: Italian Institute for International Political Studies (ISPI) 2020: The World in 2021, pages 32-35.

With 2020 drawing to a close, Dr. Camilla Bausch was invited to contribute to "The World in 2021". This publication is an annual end-of-year publication by ISPI, a leading foreign policy think tank in Italy, on trends, crises and 10 key "questions" that are relevant for the upcoming year.

As one of ISPI's flagship publications, past contributors include Italy's former Prime Minister Romano Prodi and Brookings President John R. Allen.

Camilla Bausch's contribution, published in English and Italian looks at the interlinkages between two global crises: the Corona pandemic and global heating.

Dr. Bausch's contribution was supported by the Stiftung Mercator. The author would like to thank Benjamin GÄrlach, R. Andreas Kraemer and Willem van Rijn for their editorial support.

Ä

Languages

Italian
English

Authorship

Dr. Camilla Bausch

Published in

Italian Institute for International Political Studies (ISPI) 2020: The World in 2021

Year

2020

Dimension

3 pp.

Keywords

Climate

Foreign Policy

Health

rescue and recovery packages, COVID-19, European Green Deal, carbon pricing, Joe Biden, multilateralism, Paris Climate Agreement, emissions gap report, NextGeneration EU, nature based solutions, resilience, knowledge systems, Europe, G7, G20, COP26, European presidency, ambition, ISPI, climate protection, harmful subsidies, fossil fuels

Source URL: <https://www.ecologic.eu/17740>