Sabrina Heinecke

Intern

Sabrina Heinecke supported resource efficiency projects as an Intern at Ecologic Institute from March to June 2014. Her other fields of interest included: resource policy, sustainable resource management, as well as sustainable production and consumption systems. She is a native German speaker, works also in English, and has basic knowledge of Spanish.

Sabrina Heinecke worked on trend analysis for the project Models, Potentials and Long-Term Scenarios for Resource Efficiency [1] (SimRes), which Ecologic Institute is undertaking for the German Federal Environment Agency [2] (UBA). Sabrina Heinecke also contributed to the project DYNAMIC policy MIXes for Absolute Decoupling of Environmental Impact of EU Resource Use from Economic Growth [3] (DYNAMIX), which is supported by the Seventh Framework Programme (FP7) of the European Commission (EC) under a contract with the Directorate-General for Research and Innovation [4] (DG Research & Innovation). In addition, she supported the work of Ecologic Institute on the German research projects Resource Policy [5] (PolRes).

Before coming to Ecologic Institute Sabrina Heinecke completed an internship at the Senate Chancellery of the Free and Hanseatic City of Hamburg [6] in the department of international cooperation, which allowed her to gain insight into the structures and processes of public administration and federal policy.

Sabrina Heinecke is studying International Political Management [7] at the University of Applied Sciences Bremen (Germany). She is currently supported by a Heinrich Böll Foundation [8] scholarship. Sabrina Heinecke aspires to finish her Bachelor degree during the winter semester 2015/2016.
