Felix-André Ratzel

Legal Trainee

Felix-André Ratzel worked as a Legal Trainee at Ecologic Institute, where he focused on Public International Law and European Law. In this regard, he worked on topics related to resource efficiency and climate change. He works in English and German and speaks fluent French.

Felix-André Ratzel is completing his legal clerkship at the Hanseatisches Oberlandesgericht (the higher regional court of the federal State Hamburg). During this legal clerkship he worked inter alia for the German Maritime and Hydrographic Agency (Bundesamt für Seeschifffahrt und Hydrographie [1]) and for a special panel of the Hanseatisches Oberlandesgericht. While studying he worked for the Chair for German Constitutional and Administrative Law, European Community Law and International Law [2] at the University of Tübingen.

Felix-André Ratzel studied law at the Universities of Tübingen (Germany), Bordeaux (France) and Berlin, focusing on Public International Law and European Law. During this time he gained experience working for the European Center for Constitutional and Human Rights [3] (ECCHR) and participating in activities of the International Law Students Association [4] (ILSA).
