The Berlin Seminar on Energy and Climate (BSEC) is hosting a seminar "International Technology Cooperation to Achieve Climate Objectives" on 3 December 2009 at the German Institute of Economic Research (DIW) in Berlin. Dominic Marcellino, Fellow at the Ecologic Institute in Washington, DC will outline how the diffusion of climate technologies can be supported with the mechanisms discussed in the UNFCCC negotiations. Dr. Ulf Moslener, KfW Development Bank, Energy Sector and Policy Division Asia, will talk about experiences in supporting developing countries with their creation of enabling environments for low-carbon technologies.

BSEC is a joint initiative sponsored by Ecologic Institute, the Climate Policy Initiative (CPI), the German Institute of Economic Research (DIW), the Öko-Institut, the Potsdam Institute for Climate Impact Research (PIK) and the Technical University of Berlin (TU). BSEC offers a forum for the exchange with selected experts on developments and findings in the broad field of climate and energy research and policies. The BSEC was launched in October 2009 [2] and is by invitation only.
