What we do - Ecologic Institute EU

Scientific Research

Ecologic Institute works on relevant social-political questions of sustainability research. This is done in interdisciplinary project teams that investigate their respective topics from interdisciplinary and transdisciplinary perspectives.

Research topics include:

- Analyses and evaluations of natural resource consumption. In the process, the factors that influence the status of air, water, soil, and biological diversity are taken into consideration.
- Analyses and evaluations of the socio-economic and ecological impacts of measures, policies, and strategies to improve environmental status.
- Interdisciplinary social-ecological research on the societal transformation to a sustainable community.
- Research on the acceptance and governance of transformation processes, as well as the pertinent citizen participation on regional, national, and supra-national levels.

Policy Studies

Ecologic Institute consults a wide range of political institutions, including European governments and parliaments, the European Union, and the United Nations, as well as non-governmental organizations. This consulting is scientific and neutral. A significant portion of Ecologic's work as a think tank focuses on the development of environmental policy in the European Union and its Member States.
