

To support our team in Berlin, we are looking for a

Fellow (f/m/d) in the field of EU agriculture and climate policies (start date flexible, latest February 2022)

In a series of projects, the agriculture team of the Ecologic Institute addresses the question of how European agriculture, environment and climate policy can shape the transformation to a climate-neutral economy and resilient agricultural systems. Which policy instruments do we need to initiate the transformation in different fields of action, and how can these be combined into a coherent strategy?

If this piques your interest, the agriculture team of the Ecologic Institute is looking forward to your application!

Your tasks:

- ✓ Contribute to the implementation of research and consultancy projects for German and EU clients, with a view to taking on task and project management responsibilities as soon as possible
